An illustration featuring a large, dark grey shark swimming in the water. On its back, several diverse children are sitting or lying down, each engaged in reading. From left to right: a boy in a red shirt and green shorts sits on the edge reading a white book; a girl in a blue swimsuit and a boy in a yellow shirt and blue shorts sit together, both reading; a girl in a purple hijab and purple dress sits reading a green book; a girl in a red swimsuit sits reading a tablet; and a boy in a green swimsuit sits on the far right reading. The background consists of a light green sky with a red and white striped horizon line. The text 'OCEANS OF POSSIBILITIES' is written in large, orange, bubbly letters across the top right, with the word 'OF' inside a red triangle.

INTRODUCTION

Hungry kids don't read. They can't concentrate; their physical, social, and emotional well-being suffers; and they don't participate successfully in library activities. Every summer, 22 million US children who receive free or reduced-price school meals<sup>1</sup>, including 13.7 million who live in food-insecure households<sup>2</sup>, lose access to the daily breakfast and lunch served in school. During the summer, many students also lack the other benefits of school, including engagement, learning, adults present, a temperature-controlled environment – things libraries can provide.

The USDA's Summer Food Service Program (SFSP) makes free healthy meals and snacks available to young people in communities with high rates of poverty. Many public libraries already participate as meal or snack sites, or provide programming to nearby feeding sites. Libraries can incorporate their summer library program and other fun, literacy-based activities to support child well-being and send children and teens back to school ready to learn.

JOIN A CSLP COMMITTEE

HOME / JOIN A CSLP COMMITTEE

Our committees are the lifeblood of CSLP. The hard work and creativity of our volunteers shape both the program and the organization. Strong committee participation leads to a strong CSLP.

While the duties vary, committee obligations generally run for one calendar year, and are renewable up to five times. Sign-ups take place in late summer, and applicants are notified in October. All committee work is done virtually; either through email, or through phone or online meetings. Attending the CSLP Annual Meeting is not required.

Most CSLP committees are open to all, however some have limited seats or require previous CSLP experience. The Manual Idea Selection committees have limited seats, and the Artwork Committee and the Budget Committee require previous CSLP experience.

If you would like to serve on a committee, but have missed the sign-up period, please contact Organizational Coordinator Luke Kralik at luke.kralik@cslpreads.org. He will put you in contact with a Committee Chair, and help determine if your service is appropriate at this time, or if it makes more sense to wait for the next committee cycle.

The sign-up period for the 2021 calendar year is August 21 - October 2, 2020
