Q: How Does Someone Use RegisterToVoteFlorida.gov?

Follow the on-screen instructions to:

- To submit an online voter registration application to register to vote or to update a registration record, or
- To prefill a voter registration application form that you can then print, sign, and mail or deliver to your county Supervisor of Elections.

Q: What do I need to be able to submit an online voter registration application?

You will need to have your most current and valid Florida driver license (Florida DL) or Florida Identification (Florida ID) card. You will need to enter your name, date of birth, Florida DL or Florida ID card number, and issued date EXACTLY as they appear on your most current and valid Florida DL or Florida ID card. You will also need the last four digits of your social security number. If you do not have the required information, you can still use the online system to prefill an online voter registration application form. You can then print, sign and mail or deliver to your county Supervisor of Elections office.

Q: Why do I need a current Florida DL or Florida ID card, the issued date for the card, and the last four digits of my social security number to register online?

The online system requires these added layers of security to verify your identity and protect your record against someone trying to use your identity to submit a voter registration application online.

Q: Will I be able to use the system if do not have a valid Florida DL, Florida ID card or a social security number?

You will not be able to submit an application electronically. However, you can still use the system to prefill an online application form but you will then have to print, sign and mail or deliver the completed application to your county Supervisor of Elections office.

Q: Why won't the system verify my information?

In order for the system to be able to verify your identifying information, you must enter your name (first, middle and last), date of birth, Florida DL or Florida ID card number and issued date EXACTLY as they appear on your most current and valid Florida DL or Florida ID card. That is the only way that the information can match with the information in your Florida DL or Florida ID card record. Examples of entries that can prevent the system from being able to verify identify include:

- The person enters the date of birth in the issued date field or enters the issued date in the date of birth field.
- The person enters a date of birth that is different than what appears on the person's Florida DL or Florida ID card.
- The person enters their common name such as Bob Jackson Smith instead of the name that appears on their Florida DL or Florida ID card, Robert J. Smith.
- The person enters a number instead of a letter (e.g., zero instead of an "O") as the first unit of their Florida DL or Florida ID card number instead of a letter, which corresponds, to the first letter of the person's last name. All Florida DLs and Florida ID cards begin with a letter that is the first letter of the person's last name.
- The person enters a middle initial instead of the full middle name as it appears on the Florida DL or Florida ID card or enters a middle name instead of a middle initial or middle name that is different than what is on the Florida DL or Florida ID card.
- The person enters a suffix (e.g., Jr., Sr., I, II, III, etc.) that is not on the Florida DL or Florida ID card or fails to enter one that is on the Florida DL or Florida ID card.
- The person enters a new name change but enters all other information from their former Florida DL or Florida ID card number.
