A screenshot of a dictionary application on a Mac. The window title is "Dictionary" and it shows "1 found". The search bar contains "renaissance". Below the search bar are tabs for "All", "Dictionary", "Thesaurus", "Apple", and "Wikipedia". The main content area displays the word "Ren·ais·sance" with its phonetic transcription '|ˈrenə,sɪns|'. It is identified as a "noun" and defined as "the revival of art and literature under the influence of classical models in the 14th–16th centuries." Two bullet points provide further context: "the culture and style of art and architecture developed during the Renaissance." and "(a renaissance) a revival of or renewed interest in something: rail travel is enjoying a renaissance.". An "ORIGIN" section follows, explaining the word's derivation from French renaissance, which is composed of re- ('back, again') and naissance ('birth'), the latter from Latin nascentia (from nasci 'be born').
