25	A history of education of African Americans at all levels. The history of medicine and medical practices. The history of religious practices. The history of language in the Florida African American communities. There is much more culture and historical understandings this museum should seek to cover to properly explain not just what about the Florida black population but who they are and where they come from. It should also cover a history of lynching in Florida, as well as all the race related violence and massacres that occurred in the state. There should be considerable and interactive coverage of Jim Crow in the State as well. I am 25 and have 2 parents that lived through Jim Crow in Florida.	2/29/2024 7:39 PM

44	While I am enthused about and supportive of the general idea of a Florida Black History museum, I am a victim of political violence, stalking, invasion of privacy, and extortion, and I have reason to believe that this museum and the Individual Freedom Act are products of that malicious, harmful, and/or exploitative activity targeting me. To the extent that my suspicions are correct, I insist that those responsible immediately cease and desist all such activity targeting me, correct all misleading/false statements regarding any such activity, provide me with an accounting regarding all such activity, etc. All rights, claims, etc. reserved. I have not made any waiver, and no aspect of my participation in this survey should be deemed as such. While I am obviously submitting my comments herein voluntarily and willingly, I am submitting my comments in multiple capacities (e.g. as a potential victim and/or supporter) due to the circumstances and my suspicions; and, therefore, make no waiver, release, etc., nor should there ever be any interpretation to the contrary, and I reserve any and all rights, claims, etc. with respect to any such comments, suggestions, etc., including without limitation any ownership, attribution rights, etc. More specifically, but not exclusively, many of my comments/suggestions are from my own life experiences and personal perspectives, and I vehemently insist on preservation of all value and ownership in such comments/suggestions,	2/29/2024 4:31 PM which are not being provided herein as any grant, transfer, contribution, etc. (i.e. I'd expect serious, direct, express terms discussions in advance that include my full retention/control of attribution/ownership/control and even commissions/compensation/payment in some, if not many or all instances). I have always and continue to take extreme issue with any person/organization, etc. stalking, extorting/exploiting me, infringing upon any aspect of my life and/or rights, etc. [REDACTED]

Subject to the foregoing, my comments on included topics are as follows: 1. Additional proposed topics should at the very least include (a) the history of Jackie Robinson Ballpark, including without limitation relevant influential figures like John D. Rockefeller and Franklin Delano Roosevelt, (b) other significant socio-political events and figures, like civil rights events in St. Augustine and Miami, James Weldon Johnson, President Barack Obama's campaign success and contributions to FL, legal issues and achievements (e.g. racial disparities in the law), and (c) other significant socio-arts/sports/cultural events, establishments, and figures, like Vince Carter, Ray Charles, The Highway Men, the Florida A&M University Marching Band, Bessie Stringfield. 2. Other Comments -- Generally-speaking, CS/HB 1441 seems to have been drafted by someone(s) who suffer from a negative and possibly implicitly-biased perspective on black culture and the museum itself. It is my opinion that any black history museum should be celebratory of black culture, rather than consolatory; and, therefore, I have the following suggestions regarding the legislative text: (a) Point 4 in the list of topics should be made Point 1, and revised to something along the lines of: "Notable African Americans and African-American contributions and events significant to FL, including without limitation social progress, education/thought theory/influence, science/technical, political/government service, sports, arts, and culture, including without limitation Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., Dr. Mary McLeod Bethune, Jackie Robinson Ballpark, the Tuskegee Airmen, both well-known and lesser-known FL Black leaders and events (e.g. Reverend Theodore Gibson and Attorney G.E. Graves in Miami, Martin Luther King, Jr. in St. Augustine, etc.)." (b) Along the lines of changing the tone from negatively consolatory to celebratory, "segregation" should be modified to "integration" in the list of topics. (c) Point 7 should be changed to "the rights, liberties, entitlements, and joy of human life and the progression thereof for all people, regardless of race," or something along those lines that ensures that the historical human rights abuses against Black people are obviously addressed, but does not misuse the term "genocide," which is a term and concept in international law. For further context on this very issue and per my general statement preceding each of these responses, it is apparent that those stalking, extorting, and generally obsessed with me are desperately (to the point of "oh my, my eyebrows will be forever raised") keen to stretch this museum concept into some relationship to international legal concepts and events like "apartheid" and "genocide" that are a part of the history of the actual continent of AFRICA (and not United States Black history) in some attempt to stalk and extort me, specifically. These very people have an unhealthy fixation on me, my education, and experience, which includes graduating from UF a semester early, taking a UF Law class as an undergraduate, classes in Criminal Justice, EU Law, Race and the Law, and African Politics, and even having a classmate who was quite literally a Sudanese refugee. As a full tuition merit scholarship student in law school, I worked as a research assistant on a textbook in international law, which my professor acknowledged me in as "perfection." I am no expert in international law or black history, but it is my understanding that the term "genocide" is an international law concept that should not be used in this context, and while US Black History obviously includes events of severe travesty and wrongdoing that any museum of black history should recognize and speak to, the use of the word "genocide" here is self-seeking/self-interested for those involved to attempt to create a relationship with international law from their uninspired, prosaic lives and experiences. Any member of Florida's Black community should be distraught by the use of the term itself (and the museum, for that matter) as exploitatively opportunistic. To the extent that the museum wishes to feature programming on the tragedies in Darfur, Sudan, then the use of the term "genocide" may be appropriate, but obviously not in the legislation or mission statements of the museum -- perhaps a showing of the film, "Hotel Rwanda" or expansion of a museum branch into Nigeria; then maybe it would be appropriate to use the term "genocide." (d) Lastly and per my note preceding each of these responses, I highly suspect that most involved in this museum project had never even heard of and didn't give a flying fuck about who Dr. Mary McLeod Bethune was nor the term "genocide" before targeting me (I hope you'll excuse my use of profanity, but the "F-bomb" most appropriately communicates the message). I am a victim of political violence, extortion, stalking, and other forms of abuse, and am near-certain that this museum project is an act of those malicious, extortionist/exploitative/invasive, and harmful activities, and reserve all rights, claims, etc.

The LGBTQI+ experience among the black diaspora needs to be included and presented in a manner that does not sexualize the topic but rather offers a clear understanding to the diversity of humanity. The implementation of black into law enforcement and the judicial system need to be exhibited. The influence of music, dance, culinary and even architecture needs to be explained in a meaningful way and as a part of the permanent experience of the museum. A clear understanding and responsibility of HBCUs and their founders, visual artist and educators must all have a permanent position within the museum. There needs to be an opportunity for interactive and physical touch within the museum tour experience. Attention to languages and dialect need to be available for interpretation. There is nothing beneficial about being g enslaved. Africans brought many skills that their slave holders did not have. I think it can be easy to focus this primarily on slavery, but there is a major history of these things post-Civil War. It wasn't one person, it was many bands playing in Daytona beach that helped inspire the Allman brothers. Jazz musicians would talk about their AA caretakers singing gospel and ballads and white singers were trying to imitate it. Do not forget MUSIC and the connection it has. Several programs around the country are working in this area, often working through colleges and universities, and with historians and museum professionals, to help shine a light on these crimes and try to help find answers in solving them. This is a particularly important component of understanding the struggles of African Americans living under twentieth century laws, such as Jim Crow, that strove to marginalize their existence in everyday society. 2019	I'd like to learn more about how free black people lived and worked in Florida. I'd like to learn more about how Spanish style slavery was different? I understand they were able to sue their owners for mistreatment for example, but I've never really seen any history about that. I'd love to learn more about the black people that joined up with the Seminole tribe and what their lives were like. I am from st Augustine and I feel like I know a lot about the civil rights movement here, but very little about the time before it. Maybe more about the contributions of black Americans in the World Wars and inventions and innovations and businesses built by black Floridians. There's a neighborhood north of st Augustine called Elwood and I have always wanted to know their history. What little I could find said it was at some point a turpentine collection community another rumor is that it was land given to slaves by a plantation owner when they were freed after the civil war. I've read that Butler Beach was founded by a black man to give the black community their own beach and there was also a casino and hotel and I wanna know all about it and see awesome pictures or paintings	1/12/2024 7:05 AM

The Angola Settlement was established in 1812 near the convergence of the Braden and Manatee Rivers. The settlement grew, prospered and thrived until its annihilation was indirectly ordered by Florida's provisional Governor Andrew Jackson. Men, women and children died as a result of the massacre. Some escaped into Central Florida; also South Florida. A group made their way to Cape Florida (known as Key Biscayne), and crossed the dangerous gulf stream in dug out boats. They landed in The Bahamas. A descendant population exists today in Red Bays, Andros Island in The Bahamas.	1/5/2024 7:47 AM

2220	Ummm, okay so this is the first question that mentions that the goal for the museum is already set and codified. So this is a museum and event space. Ignore my answer to question #1 above. Well, that's an interesting list of topics, but black history in Florida is SO interesting because Florida is at the same time, the oldest state visited by whites/blacks, and, the most recently development state in terms of modern development. The fabric of black participation in the state is an extremely interesting topic that should be woven into and among the topics you've got listed. Those seem to focus on achievements and history or oppression, etc. and that's okay, but wow, the daily life of black history (the way they lived) is so innovative, adaptable and creative. Examples: history of black Seminoles, Bahamian spongers on their own and their participation with Greek spongers, black Cubans and their relationships with spanish descent Cubans/Spanish American war, black farmers and cracker cowboys/land ownership, etc., civil war and events around run-away slaves (see local histories of St. Augustine for some very interesting stuff about who hid slaves, who had to buy back slaves, etc.), black business owner and some not-so-popular things like Lincoln "Stepin Fetchit" Perry of Key West. Let's delve into all of it and it won't seem like we're just trying to make the black community seem important. They WERE important and completely woven into everything that is and was the Florida experience of opportunity!! They identified and pursued ways to survive and thrive in spite of the odds.	12/29/2023 1:02 PM

Dr. Martin Luther King and iconic Black figures such as Zora Neale Hurston. Locating the museum in St. Augustine, FL, offers these opportunities and SO MUCH more. There's also the Andrew Young Crossing in the downtown Plaza as well as the 23 ACCORD Freedom Trail sites, and Ft. Mose, the first legally sanctioned free Black settlement, at the north end of town.
